WASHINGTON, AUGUST 13, 1887.

AMERICAN MONEY FOR IRISH AGITATION.

A letter of unusual interest appears in the Baltimore Sun this morning from its correspondent, Frank A. Richardson, who is now in Dublin. Perhaps its chief point of interest is what he says upon the subject of American contributions to the Irish cause.

The information he submits on this head was obtained from Mr. O'Leary, one of the four anti Home Rule adherents of Dublin, who is naturally more or less prejudiced against the existing agitation, but of whose general veracity and responsibility there would seem to be no question. The quote from Mr. Richardson's letter:

"The English holders of Virginia bonds, according to the report made to them by Sir Edward Thornton of the recent debt commission, have quite as little use for the Republican party of the Old Dominion as for the Democratic. What they most want is a grip on the State treasury, and that they are not likely to get out of it at the polls."

IT WAS not a pleasing spectacle yesterday, the homing of Holmes R. Puryear at Prince George's Court House, Va., with his neck bleeding from self-inflicted wounds, and himself almost unconscious from prostration, but hanging is harboring at least. So, it may be said, is wife murder, for which the wretched man was strangled.

SACHERET WHITNEY's decision in regard to the United States steamer Hartford will probably be to convert her into a receiving ship. She isn't worth the money it would take to put her in seaworthy condition, yet there are so many heroic associations connected with the Hartford's history that she ought to be kept afloat.

Mr. COCHRANE said that he could not help sympathizing in the severest manner with the friends of his countrymen, and, of course, they were not the ones who got the worst of it. Patriotic Americans had their own wagons to be liberally dealt with by sending them to the Dept. Contracts made with the contractors for the wagons for the sake of the lot, at reduced rates.
